difficult, and explores algorithms and systems that enable streaming of pre- encoded or live video over packet networks such as the internet. we continue by providing a brief overview of the diverse range of video streaming algorithms - max planck society - 2 streaming algorithms graphs), e.g. how well connected the graph is. although such statistics is not precise for most cases, this approximate information is usually used to speedup subsequent processes. introduction to algorithms, third edition - bayanbox - puters, there are even more algorithms, and algorithms lie at the heart of computing. this book provides a comprehensive introduction to the modern study of computer algorithms. algorithm aversion: people erroneously avoid algorithms ... - algorithm aversion: people erroneously avoid algorithms after seeing them err berkeley j. dietvorst, joseph p. simmons, and cade massey university of pennsylvania research shows that evidence-based algorithms more accurately predict the future than do human forecasters. yet when forecasters are deciding whether to use a human forecaster or a statistical algorithm, they often choose the human ... the impact of the filter bubble—a simulation based ... - online users which—due to filtering algorithms—live in a person-alised information universe biased towards their own interests. in this paper we use an agent-based simulation framework to measure the actual risk and impact of filter bubble effects occurring in online communities due to content or author based personalisation algorithms. observing the strength of filter bubble effects ... algorithms - math.ryerson - live vertex as one which has not been processed yet. a vertex which is not live is called used, or visited. in a breadth first search, we label all live neighbours of a vertex before moving on to a new vertex. in a depth first search we move from vertex to live vertex. depth first search is a recursive algorithm, breadth first is iterative using a stack. in both cases we start from an initial ... streaming algorithms for halo finders -
